Mackerel Notes.

The Dominion fisheries intelligence bureau says that the traps at Yarmouth will probably average from 8 to 10 bbls. of second run mackerel. There were no mackerel at Port La Tour and poor fishing at Ingonish. Fair catches were being made at Alberton and fish were plentiful at Bloomfield.

John Nagle paid 11 cents each for the large and 6 cents for medium mackerel of sch. Gardner Heath.

At Provincetown to-day 300 barrels of fresh mackerel are reported.

Sch. Nellie Dixon is at Boston to-day with 250 barrels salt mackerel. Three netters were also there with small fares.

Capt. Dennis O'Neil reports lots of schools of mackerel Wednesday about eight miles northeast of Thatchers Island, but no seining craft there.

The fare of sch. Hattie A. Heckman sold to Boston parties at $8 per barrel.

GOOD PROSPECTS.

A Number of Mackerel Trips Landed at Newport.

A special despatch from the TIMES correspondent at Newport reports the following arrivals at that port:

Sch. Fannie S. Orne, 150 bbls. fresh mackerel.

Sch. M. Madeleine, 70 bbls. do.

Sch. Glenelg, of Provincetown, 100 bbls. do.

Sch. Nellie Bly, 150 bbls. do.

Steamer Humphrey, 500 fresh mackerel.

The telegram says that the prospects there are good.

The netters that went out last night came in this morning empty-handed, with the exception of one or two of the boats which had a dozen or so of fish.

COD SCARCE.

Halifax Merchants Cannot Get Enough to Fill Orders.

It appears that Gloucester is not the only place where fish are much wanted and where the receipts have been light, for the Halifax Herald has the following to say in a recent issue:

"Fish are good as gold in Halifax now, and West India merchants have not more than 25 per cent. of the quantities they require to fill orders. Hard fish are particularly scarce and the bank catch so far is light. The usual receipts of shore cod, that come along in the spring, have not materialized this season. A lot of 2000 quintals was recently sold in Cape Breton to Newfoundland parties by a man who usually sends that quantity to Halifax. Last year at that season supplies were constantly coming in; this year there is very little indeed. The spring catch of bank cod is very light and the price of that, as of hard fish, is correspondingly high. A lot of 200 quintals was sold in Halifax the other day at $4.75, the highest price ex vessel, for a long time."

The Lunenburg bankers are arriving home, the fleet as a whole having fares below the average. At Mahone Bay the bankers have not landed as large fares as usual.

Good Stock.

Sch. Vera, Capt. William Corkum, stocked $3100 as the result of her recent seining trip, the crew sharing $76.89.

Mackerel Notes.

The Boston Post says:

"There was at least one disgruntled skipper of a mackerel seiner at T wharf yesterday, in the person of Capt. James Ellis of the clipper schooner, 'Nellie Dixon,' formerly owned at this port, but now one of the Provincetown fleet. This craft had 240 barrels of salt mackerel, for which the skipper wanted $7.75 a barrel, which was refused, and he held out, but could not make connections. The highest bid offered by the dealers on the pier was $7.50 a barrel. This offer, of course, was refused, and the schooner may have to proceed to Gloucester to unload. This makes the fourth trip of the vessel in the mackerel fishery, the other trips being landed at Newport, R. I. The Dixon will go to Georges for more mackerel.

The crew of 12 men of sch. Nathalie B. Nickerson, Capt. Eben T. Lewis, shared $228 as the result of their southern seining season. This is big work and makes a fine foundation for the best of the season which is yet to come. This is the biggest share made out South this season.

There were several netters at the Fort this morning with from 50 to 100 fresh mackerel each.
